The US Army has decided to modernize its cavalry, so Col. James E. Devers is ordered to convert a horse unit to motorcycles, but his men are easily outclassed as riders by a pack of rowdies, especially Grady Westfall; when he is arrested risking a long jail term, he is given one way out: enlisting as driving instructor. Unit commander Capt. Jack Hassler reviles his unorthodox methods as undermining discipline and tradition, not to mention flirting with the Colonel's daughter Beryl Ann, but he is needed, especially when the unit is ordered to prepare in two weeks for a secret mission to free nuclear scientist Dr. Tate and his daughter Claire from captivity in a castle in general Franco's fascist Spain, under cover of a motorcyclin festival in nearby Bilbao. Grady did not want to participate, but when he realizes they are just not up to it, he comes along and finds the mission quite dangerous....
